in the dark sky,
Two little rain drops, falling by,
Three little raindrops go

Four little raindrops,
we need boots for that,
Five little rain drops, still no sun,
That is too much,
so, we better run!

The Peacock song

The peacock is the national bird,
Of our country, Dear India,
It dances during spring time,
when rainbow he sees,
his colourful feathers,
just shake in the breeze.

Action Songs:-

Pitter Patter

Pitter ,Patter ! Pitter ,Patter,
Here comes the rain,
Pitter, Patter ! Pitter Patter
down the window pane Splish! Splash! Splish! Splash!
Filling every puddle
Splish! Splash! Splish! Splash!
Making birdies huddle.
Plip! Plop! Plip! Plop!
Now the sun shines through,
Plip! Plop! Plip! Plop!
There is a rainbow too,
Chirp! Chirp! Chirp! Chirp!
The birdies feel so gay,
Chirp! Chirp! Chirp! Chirp!
The rain has gone away.

Story:- A Rainy Day

It was a bright and sunny day. Hari was playing outside. Suddenly it started getting cloudy. It got darker and darker. He looked up at the sky and saw grey clouds gathering. Suddenly he heard a loud sound and saw the sky light up. He felt something wet fall on his face. He ran inside screaming, "Mummy, Mummy. Mummy, I think the sky broke and now it is leaking." He was scared. He hugged his mummy tight. Mummy laughed, and said, "No Hari, the sky did not break, nor is it leaking. Grey clouds are a sign that it is going to rain. Right now it is drizzling." "But I heard the sky break. There was a loud sound and light coming from the sky," said Hari. "That's because the clouds bang against each other. The light that you see is called lightning. The sound that you heard is called thunder. Just then it started to rain heavily. "So, the sky would fall on me?", asked Hari. "No son." "Does that mean, I can still play outside?", asked Hari. "You can play outside, Hari, but you would first have to wear your raincoat and gumboots, or you will get wet." Hari put on his raincoat and wore gumboots. He ran outside and opened his hands. "Oh, it feels wonderful mummy. He jumped in the puddles of water and laughed as the water splashed around.
